Small Support, Great Impact: Amina's Story with CRB and YHF

Amina Ahmed, a 57-year-old widow and mother of five, fled her village in Raymah Governorate when the fighting drew near. She settled with her children in a tent in Jaw Al-Naseem Camp in Marib, until floods swept away what little hope they had left.

Then came cash assistance from an emergency food assistance project funded by the Yemen Humanitarian Fund (YHF) and implemented by the Coalition of Relief and Building (CRB). She bought flour and a small clay oven, and began baking bread for her children with her own hands.

Today, Amina buys food, water and some of her children's needs with the same support. Her story is living proof that simple humanitarian assistance can restore a woman's dignity and give her the chance to start again.
